

Chest x-ray, PA view . The patient presented with a stabbing chest pain and dyspnea. The arrow is pointing to?

- Hampton's hump
- A radiologic sign seen on chest radiographs indicating pulmonary infarction and atelectasis classically due to pulmonary embolism.
- It consists of a pleura based shallow wedge-shaped consolidation in the lung periphery with the base against the pleural surface.